

Department of Social Work and Social Care Seminar

Taking a PAUSE - a relationship based model for working with women who have experienced recurrent removals: why, what and how

Wednesday, 17 January 2018

More About the Speaker:

Ellen is a social worker and play therapist with more than twenty years' experience of working with children and families in statutory, voluntary and CAMHS settings. Having begun her career as a residential social worker she has experience of a range of frontline work including child protection and court work, fostering and adoption work and of providing therapeutic services to children and adults as part of an award-winning innovative parental mental health service.

Ellen Marks

Director of Practice and Learning at PAUSE

She is passionate about the opportunity that Pause provides to work with women in a creative way to help them identify and reach their goals. At the heart of this are the relationships between Pause Practitioners and women, with the skills and experiences of both coming together to unlock potential.

Time: 5.30pm - 7pm
(Registration and refreshments from 5.00pm)

Venue: Kingston University, Business School
Room: BS0026
Kingston Hill, KT2 7LB

To book for this free seminar please visit:
www.healthcare.ac.uk/events or email HSCE-events@sgul.kingston.ac.uk

Faculty of Health, Social Care and Education